The Henry B. and Jocelyn Wallace Assessment and Counseling Clinic (ACC) of the Belin-Blank Center for Gifted Education and Talent Development is dedicated to providing clinical, outreach, and consultation services for high ability and twice exceptional students, their families, and schools.

belinblank.org/clinic
WHEN DOES A STUDENT NEED PSYCHOEDUCATIONAL ASSESSMENT?

There are a variety of situations in which a high ability student may benefit from assessment. Some examples include:

- Demonstration of strong abilities or aptitude in various areas, yet academic performance does not reflect these abilities
- Reports of difficulties focusing or completing assignments
- Indication of social, behavioral, or communication difficulties that are preventing a student from excelling in and out of school
- Inquiry about a student’s strong intellectual abilities and/or aptitudes in specific areas so that adequate challenge can be provided